MARKET PULSE — Weekly Trading Report

Sunday 11 October 2026

OUTLOOK · NEUTRAL-BULLISH

MACRO THEME

S&P 500 record close as SpaceX spectrum deal reshapes telecom; 10Y hits 5.36% then eases to 5.24%; OpenAI revenue gap roils tech Thursday; Brent above $105 on Iran strike-options; gold rallies on geopolitical bid; FOMC minutes confirm hiking bias; Q3 earnings season begins Tuesday.

OVERVIEW

Risk-on tone persists with S&P 500 at 7,811 just below Tuesday's record 7,818.93. Participation broadening: equal-weight S&P outperformed cap-weight (+1.6% vs +1.2%). AI nuclear-energy theme (CEG + Google, BKH deals) reinforces infrastructure capex narrative. OpenAI revenue-gap scare (-1.25% Nasdaq Thursday) was resolved Friday as Bloomberg confirmed ≥$70B annualised target. SpaceX $8B spectrum deal hammered TMUS (-13.6%), lifted tower REITs. FOMC minutes confirm most participants expect another 2026 hike. 10Y settled at 5.24% after touching 5.36% — rates headwind persists but is not accelerating. Brent above $105 on Iran strike-options keeps energy-shock inflation feed alive. Gold rallied 1.5% Friday on geopolitical bid despite Trump assurance of no pre-midterm strike. US bond market closed Monday for Columbus Day; Q3 earnings season begins Tuesday with major banks. CPI Wednesday is the dominant macro event of the cycle.

TOP CONVICTION TRADES

#1 NAS100 LONG

ENTRY	TARGET	STOP
30,500-30,650	31,500	30,200

OpenAI revenue gap was a valuation reporting issue — Bloomberg confirmed Friday that the company expects ≥$70B annualised by year-end. The Thursday selloff cleaned out weak longs and provides a better entry. AI nuclear-energy theme (CEG +12.3%, BKH follow-on within 24 hours) confirms infrastructure buildout is real. TSM earnings Thursday is a forward catalyst. CPI risk is symmetrical: a cool print would likely trigger a +2-3% NAS100 rally. R:R ~1:3.

#2 XAUUSD SHORT

ENTRY	TARGET	STOP
4,230-4,250	4,100	4,290

Friday's +1.5% gold rally was purely geopolitical (Iran strike-options headline). Trump explicitly stated no strike before the November 3 midterms — this premium should partially deflate. The structural case remains bearish: 10Y at 5.24% is the highest sustained yield since 2002, FOMC confirms more hikes, and the opportunity cost of holding gold is extreme. CPI Wednesday is the catalyst: a hot print drives real yields higher and gold lower. R:R ~1:2.5.

#3 US30 LONG

ENTRY	TARGET	STOP
51,200-51,400	52,000	50,800

Equal-weight S&P 500 outperformed cap-weight (+1.6% vs +1.2%) — participation is genuinely broadening beyond mega-caps. Q3 earnings season begins Tuesday. The AI nuclear theme and SpaceX spectrum deal signal healthy M&A and capex. Price consolidating at record highs, not rolling over. CPI Wednesday is the risk; half position pre-CPI, add post-CPI if the print is benign. R:R ~1:2.

AUDUSD traded below 0.7000 for the third consecutive week. Rejected at 0.6990 Tuesday. DXY firmed to 102.2. RBA-Fed rate differential narrowing in USD's favour. China stimulus disappointment adds headwind. US CPI Wednesday is the primary catalyst. 3-day bias NEUTRAL-BEARISH: sell rallies 0.6980-0.7000 stop 0.7030 target 0.6880. ANALYSIS

Silver -2.25% on the week in a volatile range from 58.92 to 61.62. Industrial demand (AI data centres, nuclear infrastructure) provides a structural floor that gold lacks. Friday's gold rally dragged silver back above 61. Gold/silver ratio at 68.8x. CPI Wednesday is the catalyst. 3-day bias NEUTRAL: above 61.35 buy target 63.00 stop 60.50; below 59.00 sell target 57.00 stop 59.80. Inside range, no trade.

RISK SCENARIOS

Hot US CPI Print (>3.0% YoY) Wed 14 October — 30%

USD +1-2%, equities -1.5 to -3%, gold -1 to -2%, NAS100 hit hardest. 10Y breaks back above 5.36% toward 5.50%. Removes any residual dovish Fed narrative entirely. Probability elevated by UMich 1-year inflation expectations at 4.7% and Brent above $100 feeding into headline CPI.

Iran Strike / Strait of Hormuz Disruption — 10-15%

Gold +3-5%, oil +10-15%, equities -2-4%, AUDUSD -1-2%. Despite Trump's assurance that no strike occurs before midterms, the White House formally requesting strike options is a signal. Tail risk but dominant geopolitical scenario.

TSM Earnings Miss or Weak Guide Thu 15 October — 15%

NAS100 -3 to -5% gap risk, semis -5%+. AI chip demand narrative unwinds. Would invalidate Trade 1 (NAS100 LONG) instantly. A beat with strong guide could conversely push NAS100 back toward 31,361 ATH.

Soft US CPI Print (≤2.7% YoY) Wed 14 October — 20%

Equities +1.5 to +2.5%, gold +1-2%, USD -1%, 10Y toward 5.00%. NAS100 would be the primary beneficiary. Rate-cut hopes would resurface despite FOMC minutes. Most beneficial scenario for bullish equity trades.

Q3 Bank Earnings Disappoint Tue 13 October — 15%

US30 -1 to -2%, financials -3%+. JPM, C, WFC set the tone for earnings season. Loan-loss provisions and net interest margin are the key metrics. A miss would challenge the broadening-participation thesis.
